Objective:

This tour is being conducted for middle school students to afford them an opportunity to learn about some of the different religions in Tulsa. No proselytizing is allowed. As the group visits the houses of worship, the clergy will speak to them and answer questions. We hope this experience will help the students understand, appreciate and respect differences in religion.

Transportation:

Bus transportation will be provided to each stop. The buses will return to the first stop of the tour.

Cost and Registration:

The cost of the tour is only $5 per participant. Participant fee includes bus transportation, kosher snack, and t-shirt. Registration and payment must be made by November 15th. Please complete the registration form at www.occjok.org/programs/tour.html. Payment can be made through the website or by mail.

 Your cooperation is requested in dressing modestly at the Masjid Al-Salam Mosque.

It is respectful for women to wear long skirts or loose slacks and a head covering, such as a hat or headscarf. Men and women will enter separately and be seated on the floor.

The Oklahoma Center for Community and Justice is a human relations organization dedicated to fighting bias, bigotry and racism in Oklahoma. OCCJ promotes understanding and respect among all races, religions, and cultures through advocacy, conflict resolution and education.
