WHAT DOES ILC DO?

- Promote OCCJ's mission of achieving respect and understanding for all people through education, advocacy and dialogue.
- Develop Oklahoma's next generation of inclusive leaders.
- Build a network of inclusive leaders who are a resource for companies and organizations.

HOW DOES ILC WORK?

OCCJ's ILC consists of a leadership team of professionals working to bring dynamic diversity, inclusion and equity programming to the community.

The leadership team plans four quarterly events open to all members of ILC as well as a flagship program called the Inclusive Leadership Institute.

At the institute, Oklahoma professionals have the opportunity to develop the necessary skills and tools to become more inclusive leaders.

INCLUSIVE LEADERSHIP INSTITUTE

Our leadership institute develops emerging professionals into leaders that have the knowledge and tools necessary to foster inclusive and collaborative workplaces and communities.

We seek applicants who are eager to learn more about becoming an inclusive leader and how to make a significant difference in our community.

The institute takes place yearly and consists of four monthly half-day sessions.

Participants must attend each workshop to graduate from the program.

Applications are available online at occjok.org.
